IN THE HEART OF A GREAT SECTION
"WHERE NATURE
SMILES"SMALL COTTON FARMS
LIVE THROUGH THRIFTONLY BY MOST RIGID ECONOMY
ARE GROWERS ABLE TO CONTINUE IN BUSINESS.

In recent years small cotton farmers in the old cotton belt have been compelled to face competition of the new cotton regions of western Texas and western Oklahoma, where large-scale methods and up-to-date machinery have greatly reduced production costs. A study has been made by the United States Department of Agriculture to determine how the white small farmers of Georgia are meeting this competition. They are doing so by accepting unusually low incomes and a notably restricted standard of living rather than by adopting improved methods of production. Records obtained from 288 white farm families in Gwinnett county, Georgia, a typical Piedmont district, farmed mostly by whites, showed an average net cash income in 1924 of only $424 per family.

These Gwinnett families average five persons each. Their cash income was supplemented by food, fuel and shelter from the farm, estimated to be worth $396 per family. Out of their net cash income they had to pay ordinary living expenses. Their actual outlay for family living averaged only $291. This left $133 to apply on their debts or to add to their capital.

Most of these farmers are tenants, although farms are low in value. The prevalence of tenancy is attributed mainly to the fact that men usually start farming that way at an early age without having accumulated any capital of their own. Their wants meagre though they are, so generally exceed their income that progress toward farm ownership is difficult. Moreover, the incentive to thrift is weakened by the fact that even without capital a farmer can obtain a house, land and credit.

Traditional conservatism and lack of contact with other communities are considered the principal objects to the economic advancement of these people. Most of them have always lived near where they were reared and very few have traveled. Their conservative disposition is shown by the fact that few of them are taking advantage of the opportunities to supply nearby Atlanta with poultry, dairy products, and other vegetables. They are also handicapped by the fact that farms in the county are very small. On such farms the ownership and use of modern planters and cultivators is not economical. In 1924 more than 40 per cent of the farms had only one work animal, and only 14 per cent had more than two.

Mostly by which family living is maintained in spite of these economic handicaps involve rigid economy. More than 70 per cent of the families have sewing machines, and the housewife makes most of the clothing worn by herself and the children. Thirty-four per cent of the cropper families live in houses with only one thickness of lumber. For books, magazines, amusement, education, religion, and other forms of "advancement" the average annual expenditure was only $24. About the only luxuries in general demand were tobacco and snuff. The expenditure for these items, however, took quite a liberal share ($15 per family) of the net cash income.

Signs of change are noticed, however, especially among the children of the better placed families. Forty-seven per cent of the children of the farm-owning families who had left home had gone into other occupations than farming. Only 29 per cent of the children of the cropper families left agriculture when they left home.

It is estimated by the department families along the northern border of the old cotton belt—west of the Mississippi river live no better than those of Gwinnett county. Small farms having only a few acres in cotton and a somewhat larger area in corn and other crops are typical in the Piedmont region, and, in fact, throughout most of the area of the older cotton states. In Gwinnett county, Georgia, the area in cotton on the average farm is only seven acres. The 288 farms covered in the department's survey average eight acres in cotton, 13 acres in corn, and four acres in other crops. Owner farmers with tenants working for them had 48 acres in crops all told. Renters and owners without tenants had an average of 26 acres in crops. Croppers were handling an average of 24 acres in crops. Farms so small are not a favorable basis for obtaining adequate farm incomes. Their persistence in the older cotton states, in an age in which mechanical methods make it possible for the average farm family to handle a considerably larger area, is attributed mainly to the conservation of the average cotton farmer.

COBBTOWN YOUNG WOMAN
INJURED IN AUTO WRECK

It is understood that the radius rod of the car broke and the car left the road and struck a tree, smashing it badly. The glass windows cut the young woman's nose through the bone in two places and also badly cut her forehead. Her arm was also broken. She was attended by Dr. J. Z. Patrick, who later brought her to Statesboro for treatment, which was given by Dr. Moorey at his home.

TAX RECEIVER'S BOOKS WILL CLOSE MAY FIRST

Tax Receiver John P. Lee requests that the public be reminded that his books will close May 1st—ten days from today.

Mr. Lee has made three rounds over the county and has held his office open for the past two months, yet he states that less than one-third of the property owners have made returns of their taxes. This means there is going to be a rush towards the close, or that there is going to be a failure to make returns. The law requires that double tax shall be imposed upon those who fail to make proper returns of their property.

If you are going to save this expense, do it before the books close May 1st.

COUNTY SCHOOL NEWS

For the third time, the Ogeechee Consolidated School District voted on a bond issue. No further attempt at voting bonds in this district will be made in the near future. In the election held on the 12th inst., the vote was 51 against school house and 129 for school house, which is the largest vote against school house yet registered in elections for bonds in that district. The trouble seems to be largely over the question of location and not really an unfavorable attitude toward a better school for the district. Those in opposition, or a good many of them, say if these-and-so were done, they too, would be for bonds. As the matter now is, the Ogeechee Consolidated District is in rather bad way for the successful operation next school year. What will be done will depend on the efforts of those concerned between now and next October. It may be possible to build by public subscription a house that would be adequate. The Warren school house was built without issuing bonds and they have a splendid plant. If those citizens who are well able to do so, would give substantial sums, it will be possible to erect a suitable house in time for the opening next fall. The citizens of the Ogeechee Consolidated School District created their own district by vote of the people within the district after the question was voted in a test of sentiment election to ascertain what the citizens really wanted. Never before have we had a bond issue defeated except in the previous elections held in this district. The sentiment seems to stand about as it was the first election. Just a few changes have been observed. What is best for the citizens of the district will have to be determined by them. A progressive section like this cannot afford to not carry on. Whatever the county board of education can do to help with the situation, they stand ready to do. The destiny of any school district is almost entirely in the hands of the citizens of the district. Almost two-thirds of the people have shown what they desire, but the ruling minority says no, and so the matter now hangs in an indefinite haze of mystery.

Cotton and Corn Yields Increased By Top Dressing

Nature is a tolerant mistress. She stands a lot of abuse and is quick to respond to kind treatment. The farmer who year after year takes nourishment from the soil without doing anything to replace it can farm in a bad fashion. Nature will do her best to bring the crop to a healthy maturity, but every effort leaves her a little more exhausted.

In former years fertilizer was applied to cotton almost exclusively before or at planting time. Tests conducted by a number of Experiment Stations, however, show that two of our major crops, cotton and corn, thrive better if a major portion of one element—nitrogen—is reserved for a side dressing.

According to the "Auburn Method," developed by the Experiment Station at Auburn, Alabama, all acid phosphate and potash used on cotton should be applied at planting time, but only one-fourth of the nitrate used should go under the crop. The remaining three-fourths should be applied at chipping time. The experience of many farmers indicates that the yield of seed cotton can be increased 400 or 500 pounds per acre by the use of 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre in the above way. At chipping time cotton plants have developed a root system able to take up readily available nitrogen within a few days. Delay in application of the side dressing means diminished yield.

PICKED UP ABOUT TOWN

Judge Proctor declares that every husband believes his wife is extravagant, but he would have an awful time proving it.

"Love may not be like a disease," asserts Sid Parrish, "but the man who eats onions and garlic every day isn't in much danger."

Walter McDougald says an optimist is not a man who lives on Easy street, as some suppose, but is the fellow who keeps humping for a living.

"A small boy just old enough to ask questions can take all the conceit out of a man who thinks he knows it all," says Rex Fletcher.

"When the average man reads some verse that he can't understand he admits it must be real poetry and he's it go that," says Pete Donaldson.

"Who ever expected to see the time when a girl would about as soon be cross-eyed as to have a pimple on her face?" asks Paul Franklin.

"A man can make it a practice to get up at 5 o'clock in the morning," says J. E. McGowan, "but he must expect anything to believe him if he says he does."

"I've often wondered here of late," says Jack Murphy, "what became of the old-fashioned storekeepers who used to sell you two of a fifteen-cent article for a quarter."

W. F. Key says when he hears a man bragging on his wife's temper, her cooking and her good looks, he knows that man is either newly married or woefully hen-pecked.

"I've always noticed," comments Leroy Cowart, "that the woman whose husband has a fine like a catfish doesn't trust him any farther than another woman trusts her husband who looks like a man."

Don't hire more teachers than your average for the term just closing will warrant. Remember the new requirements in regard to the normal training teachers in schools receiving special aid and those that have been accredited and those that expect to be during the coming school year.

R. R. OLLIFF, Superintendent of the school property of the Port of High School, as it is now named to go, it will very seriously affect the school campus. At best the play grounds are limited and to take a strip right through the grounds will be a serious handicap to the school as a whole. One public road now passes just in front of the school buildings, and to allow another to pass as near to the rear of the buildings as the one in front (and the one to the rear would pass right alongside of the play grounds), would seriously endanger the children while at play. Too, the state department of education requires at least four acres of ground for every accredited school on the list. Port has recently been placed on the Southern accredited list of schools. How can the Port school afford to lose the land the road would take, irrespective of the added danger to the children? The route in front of the school houses is shorter and would be far better—can be built cheaper.

The Middle Ground, Denmark, Nevils, Stilson, Esala and Port schools have already elected their principals for the term of 1927-28. Other schools will elect immediately. There are but few vacancies in our schools for next term—fewer than ever before, so far as I know. More teachers are seeking positions in this county than at any time I ever knew.

This week will end many of the schools. Those that have added the seventh month will close. Just a few of the high schools to continue for the eighth and ninth months. Denmark and Nevils each will operate eight months. Stilson, Register, Port and Brooklet will go the full term of nine months.

Another year there will be several schools that will make application for the special "state elementary aid" that has been appropriated to the Nevils, Denmark and Port schools, respectively. We hope that the state will enable us to really equalize all

VETERAN WITAKER RETURNS FROM TAMPA REUNION

Readers of the Bulloch Times: This will let you know I am back from the Tampa reunion. It seems the further we go, the better we get. This reunion was as good as could be, kind treatment, plenty to eat, and pages loaded to wait on you.

Well, Tampa is a pretty town of about 160,000 population last April. The Tampa Bay Hotel is 500 yards long and has 500 rooms—the biggest house I ever saw. I went over on Davis Island. This place is one that some of those developers made by digging sand out of the bay and piling it up on an island, which is a fine place. Went from Tampa to Manatee county, to Bradenton—a pretty town. There they gave us a good dinner. Went from there to the Gulf. Nothing much there but tide water and Calumet or St. Ignace bathing. On this trip we crossed the Gandy bridge, which is six miles long, the longest bridge in the world and cost seven million dollars to build. The tolls average from five to seven hundred dollars a day. I wish it was mine just one month.

There were 2,345 old soldiers registered. The reunion next year will be at Little Rock, Ark. We ate at the mess hall. Good ladies waited on us. One that waited on the table I ate at said to me, "When you start home, come by and I will give you a snack for your breakfast." So I went by and she gave me a box. I have drawn many a two-days' ration that wasn't as much as she gave me for a snack. She is a free giver. I hope she will live a long and useful life.

The estimate of the old soldiers and visitors was placed at 30,000. A great many northern people. I talked with a lady from Illinois. She said she was a widow; said her grandfather was killed at Chickamauga. I said, "Yes, man, war is mighty bad for a poor man to be killed." "Yes, yes," she said, "my grandfather belonged to the 8th Illinois cavalry." Well, I thought, if he had been at the home attending to his business he would not have been killed at Chickamauga. Many a Yankee lost his life to free the negro, and what good did it do them, I wish I knew. I talked with a little lady from New Jersey. She is a nice little lady; also one from Michigan. I did not like her much. I talked with some Calumet or St. Ignace. I could understand their talk and did not feel away any time with them. Will try to do better next time. W. R. WHITAKER.

CONDITIONS IMPROVING, SAYS CHEVROLET OFFICIAL

Los Angeles, April 22.—Marked evidence of further prosperity that seems to be in store for the country generally throughout the current year was pointed out by R. H. Grant, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, who has just concluded a series of 21 nation-wide sales meetings that brought him into close touch with business conditions from coast to coast. During the course of the meetings, which consumed three months, Mr. Grant addressed more than 15,000 people and enjoyed an excellent opportunity to survey trade conditions at first hand.

"Business conditions over the United States, as we saw them in the first three months of the year, more than justified the optimistic forecasts made last December," Mr. Grant declared. "Trade activity and soundness in the early months have demonstrated the accuracy of the opinion that the year should be an excellent one for American business."

"Every factor that should contribute to good business is at hand. Every where we found optimism and confidence amid unusual activity for the time of the year. Everywhere was reflected the financial stability of the country."

"The aggregate and individual wealth is the greatest ever; savings deposits and business done through checking accounts are constantly reaching new levels and a more even distribution of wealth is contributing to further economic soundness."

"Excellent reasons for the belief that prosperity will attend trade throughout the year are found in every section of the country. Crop diversification has helped the south. Plenty of rain and snow in the Pacific Coast Region, the last part of the country to be visited, assures good irrigation for crops in that territory. Increased employment in the industrial sections of the middle west is giving these regions greatly increased buying power. Strides in the direction of further diversification in the Northwest should make the grain country a bigger factor in the buying market. The corn belt too is preparing for its biggest season. Gains being made in our own business in New York and New England are surprising."

Georgia has at last started again on the right road by the ratification of the Constitutional Amendment giving her satisfactory Vital Statistics Laws, but the destination of complete registration of births and deaths has not yet been reached.

If every one did his duty the road to registration would be short and pleasant, but if indifference, carelessness and violations of the law are encountered, the State will have a long and arduous road to travel before the journey's end of complete registration is reached.

The Empire State of the South should be in the vanguard on this road leading to a higher order of civilization, blazing the way for other States to follow, but instead she is trailing along the well defined road made by the passage of forty-two of the forty-eight States of our Union.

Fifty-two years ago Maine and Georgia started together on the road of birth and death registration with only seventeen States ahead of them. Maine has not only forged ahead of Georgia and reached the goal of complete death registration twenty-seven years ago, but she passed on the roadside nine of the seventeen States that had a lead.

The progress of Georgia unfortunately has been retarded by indifference, lack of appropriations, legal restrictions and many other obstacles until now she finds herself in the ignominious position of taking the dust of forty-two States that have been quicker in realizing the importance and value of birth and death registration and consequently faster in securing complete records of them.

No Georgian wants our State to be recorded as an "also-ran" on any course of enlightenment and progress, so let's get busy and see to it that every birth and every death occurring in the State is registered.

IS SMALL POX COMING BACK IN STYLE? GEORGIA SPENDS LITTLE ON HEALTH

Very few people can calmly shake hands with a case of smallpox. We instinctively fear this disease more than others just as dangerous. This is the cause for many generations in the past scourges of this terrible disease sweep through all countries of the world, killing, blinding and disfiguring thousands of people.

About forty years ago the art of vaccination became perfected and more universally used and has gradually developed. In spite of all opposition on the part of the ignorant and the prejudiced we have almost stamped out smallpox by means of vaccination. Almost, but not quite. In fact, smallpox is still with us everywhere and our only protection is vaccination. If we let one generation of children grow up without vaccination we shall again have terrible outbreaks of this dread and horrible disease.

There are many proofs of this prediction. During recent years in certain large cities of the West, where certain cults and so-called religious sects have prohibited vaccination, smallpox has appeared in a very virulent form just as bad as in the old days.

Smallpox in Georgia seems to be flaring up again in a small way. Recent reports show an undoubted increase. This is not unexpected, for people are beginning to get careless about having their children vaccinated. Were it not for the wise provision of requiring all children to be vaccinated before entering school, we would long ago have been visited by more or less a very epidemic.

Immunity from a successful vaccination may slowly wear off in a few years, and it is very important that we be revaccinated every three or four years.

The State Board of Health is advising the people of Georgia to be on guard. You parents, if your children have not been vaccinated, by all means see to it at once. And you yourselves, if you have a good scar, have your doctor or health officer vaccinated. If it "takes," this shows you could take smallpox. If exposed, it could take smallpox. If exposed, it could take smallpox. If exposed, it could take smallpox.

During the last three months of 1926 we are told by our State Board of Health that approximately 100,000 children in Georgia have been immunized against diphtheria by the administration of Toxin-Antitoxin. What can we do in 1927?

The season for flies and mosquitoes is upon us; are you ready for it? Clean up; repair screens; see that there is no stagnant water and no place for them to lay their eggs.

Have you had your child immunized against diphtheria?

God's richest blessing—your mother. God bless her.

When a MAN— or a COTTON PLANT Needs FOOD

At the end of a hard morning's work, your whole body seems to ache for food. It sure feels fine to put your feet under the table and enjoy your dinner.

Your noonday meal gives you the strength to keep going until nightfall.

Things are not much different with a cotton plant. You put fertilizer under it—and that's a kind of breakfast. It carries the plant along to chopping time.

Then is when every plant standing in your fields ought to be side-dressed with 150-200 pounds of Nitrate of Soda.

They will all repay you for that good "dinner" of plant food by churning right up and making cotton for you to the end of the season.

Not what we say. But what clear-headed, practical cotton growers all around you do. They make dollars-and-cents profits feeding their cotton at chopping time with this one food that carries it on to a high yield maturity.

And Nitrate of Soda gives the same money-making results when side-dressed on corn.

Just cut out this advertisement and write your name and address in the margin. Then mail it to us. We will send you, without one penny of cost our little book "Side-Dressing Cotton and Corn." Our manager is a practical cotton grower and knows just what conditions call for here in the South's Empire. Ate.
